Executive

Executive Questions

Q: Why are my sales down this week?

A: Sales are down this week mainly due to a stock shortage on two key SKUs and lower-than-usual coverage in the West region caused by staff absences.

Executive

Executive Questions

Q: What changed compared to last month?

A: Compared to last month, order-booker coverage dropped by about 8% and two fast-moving SKUs went out of stock for several days, both contributing to the softer performance.

Executive

Executive Questions

Q: Explain the decline in the South Region.

A: The South Region's decline is driven by reduced distributor coverage, a rise in dormant outlets, and softer demand in the Personal Care category.

Executive

Executive Questions

Q: If I had only one day to improve sales, where should I focus?

A: With one day, focus on resolving the stock shortage on top-selling SKUs and re-engaging the highest-value dormant outlets, as these offer the fastest recoverable revenue.

Executive

Executive Questions

Q: Which three distributors deserve my visit today?

A: Prioritize Zeeshan Enterprises and Noman & Sons, both showing declining volumes, along with Prime Mart Distributors due to its ongoing stock shortage.

Executive

Executive Questions

Q: Which customers are at risk of churn?

A: Roughly 140 outlets that haven't ordered in over 90 days are at risk of churn, concentrated mostly in the South and West regions.

Executive

Executive Questions

Q: Recommend the top five actions that will maximize sales this week.

A: This week's top actions: resolve the SKU-4456 and SKU-5120 stock shortages, launch a reactivation push for the top 50 dormant outlets, reinforce coverage in the West region, extend the Brand Alpha promotion to underperforming territories, and coach the two lowest-productivity supervisor teams.
